The country also reports that the National Council for the Control of Narcotics and Psychotropic Substances (CONSEP) is carrying out the project for decentralization of drug policies with seven of the country’s municipalities. These municipalities will assume responsibility for executing prevention programs in cooperation with public and private agencies. These agencies carry out prevention projects in key populations.

CICAD encourages Ecuador to continue its efforts to fully comply with this recommendation.

Ecuador reports that it has reached an agreement with the Information and Prevention Department of the Police National Anti-Drug Office to evaluate the impact of that agency’s prevention programs in the educational sector. The National Council for the Control of Narcotics and Psychotropic Substances’ (CONSEP) Ecuadorian Observatory on Drugs will carry out this investigation.

It has also held coordination meetings to define the scope of the evaluation and has begun analyzing the plans and documents that serve as the basis for the prevention projects in the education sector.

Ecuador has initiated the process of adoption by its National Congress, of the Protocol against the Illicit Manufacture of and Trafficking in Firearms, their Parts and Components and Ammunition of the United Nations Convention against Transnational Organized Crime.

In the area of demand reduction, Ecuador has started implementing steps to establish programs that will offer technical training, university degrees, and professional education courses related to the topic. Also, resources have been approved to finance prevention and treatment programs. The country has initiated a nationwide study to measure the magnitude of drug consumption within the general population. Nevertheless, no progress has been done in conducting studies to measure the impact and effectiveness of the country’s prevention programs; neither has it launched social reintegration programs or early detection networks. Similarly, no assessments of the treatment and rehabilitation programs have been conducted.

With respect to the areas of supply reduction and control measures, the country has commenced the development of a system to identify areas of illicit crops, as well as to establish formal mechanisms for assessing the controls placed on the use and distribution of pharmaceutical products and controlled chemical substances.

CICAD recognizes the commitment of Ecuador with the Multilateral Evaluation Mechanism (MEM) process and encourages the country to fully comply with the pending recommendations.
