• Recognizes the importance of multisector community coalitions in reducing substance abuse

• Establishes funding for local community coalitions – (local coalitions can apply for up to $125,000 dollars per year for a period of up to five years - renewable)

• FY2008 cohort has almost 800 grants in all 50 States with over 10,000 community volunteers actively participating in reducing youth drug use at the local level.
Goals of DFC

- To establish and strengthen collaboration among communities, private nonprofit agencies, and Federal, State, local and tribal governments to support the efforts of community coalitions to prevent & reduce substance abuse among youth.

- To reduce substance abuse among youth and, over time, among adults by addressing the factors in a community that increase the risk of substance abuse and promoting the factors that minimize the risk of substance abuse.
The community coalition model has proven successful in reducing drug use and underage drinking.

Outcomes for communities with Drug Free Community-funded coalitions are better than national MTF trends.
Past Month Youth Substance Use Rates in Coalition Areas are Significantly Lower than the National Average in 2007

Community Coalition: what exactly is it?
A democratic process to resolve community problems.
A coalition is defined as:

a formal arrangement for cooperation and collaboration between groups or sectors of a community, in which each group retains its identity but all agree to work together toward a common goal of building a safe, healthy and drug free community.
Vehicle for bringing together community sectors to develop and carry out strategies to achieve population-level reductions in substance abuse rates
Differences Between Coalitions and Programs

• Scale
  – Population-level outcomes

• Multiple Causes
  – Identify and address all salient personal and environmental risk factors
  – Systems level solutions

• Actors
  – Coalition is neutral convener/coordinator
  – Action taken by all members of the coalition
Who is a Coalition?

Elements (sectors) impacted by a problem that all contribute to carrying out strategies.
